I have spoken to Ben Millard as perhaps you have as well.

We got a very favourable ruling considering precedent on such matters. However it's far from over. I believe that this is a big part of the final battle. Along with the family's case and a submission to the corporate and Consumer affairs dept.

For me there is a lot of money and pride at stake for most of you it is your life, your reputation as well as your livelihood.

We should win if we do not it will be because of our own shortcomings.

Either in not sticking together or in not giving it our complete attention.

I agree with Ben Millard that we each need to review EVERY WORD AND EVERY PICTURE on Ritchie's website. In every instance that we see an opportunity to prove Ritchie wrong we must document the proof carefully and completely.

If we know the truth ourselves document it. If we know of others that know the truth pressure them until they document it.

If you know a statement is wrong show the proof. If you can prove the authenticity of a painting that is or was on the website show the proof.

I am happy to act as the central point to receive, catalogue and prepare the evidence.

For Ben Millard if anyone else wants the job please speak up.

To do it this way will keep the legal fees to a minimum and if we do it right this will end sooner not later.

I have just seen the work undertaken by Joe Octavnik and it is nearing completion. It contains much of the documentation we need for this case and while Joe is not on the roster of plaintiffs for this case his time effort and financial cost will probably exceed each of our shares.

The holidays will reduce the seven weeks or so we have to prepare for the next round so please start as soon as possible give it your best.

Welcome your comments and ideas again sooner rather than later.

I have included Christian and Wolf Morrisseau as I know they have information of value. I will outline the type of truthful statement I believe they can provide which will be of benefit to this case and possibly to the family's case as well. Other family members may also wish to provide evidence to refute Ritchie's claims.

Call me what you want, but please call me.

Thanks

Jim
